

Public Charter School Support Internship

Internship Job Description

Organization Overview

FOCUS is an education non-profit charter school support organization in Washington, D.C. that supports the diverse set of public charter schools by advocating for and strengthening autonomy, equity, and quality. Since 1996, FOCUS has been the primary advocate for public charter schools in Washington, DC. FOCUS's work has ensured that public charter schools have the necessary freedom and funding to create the current quality school options for DC families. Today, there are 120 public charter schools in the District serving more than 41,000 students, affording students and families the power of choice in their education. About the Internship

FOCUS seeks highly capable and energetic college and graduate school student interns to support operations and increase the reporting capacity in local charter schools.

Charter schools rely heavily on data collection, data management, reporting and advocacy. Interns will be placed with a local public charter school for the school year depending on their interests. Through their work in public charter schools, interns will have the opportunity to gain hands-on experience with school operations, advocacy, building large datasets, data cleaning, and creating reports. Interns will gain extensive knowledge of the DC's public education system, the charter school sector, and nonprofit management.

Interns will work on a variety of projects with their assigned school's staff. Interns will be assigned to schools based on interests and strengths. Sample projects include:

- Perform classroom analysis on student reading scores
- Design reports displaying school attendance trends
- Help implement new report card systems
- Compile, clean, and enter data from existing sources into new databases
- Work with teachers and school staff to create reporting and analysis that will help improve student outcomes
- Create presentations for staff professional development days and charter school boards

Dates:

Spring Semester Internship: January 2019- May 2019 (150 hours total)

Compensation: Interns will be paid a stipend of $2250 for one semester. The stipend will be paid out in 2-3 payments per semester based on hours completed.

This internship is eligible for university credit (students must work this out with their university prior to the internship and provide FOCUS with the paperwork).

Hours: Interns are required to work 10-15 hours per week with flexibility regarding days and hours.

Training: Interns will participate an orientation that includes an overview of Excel, D.C.'s public education scene, designing quality reports, as well as on-going workshops and networking opportunities throughout the school year.
